SUMMARY

A final-year Master's student at the University of Geneva, specializing in localization studies, translation technologies, and communication. Originally from New York, I have previous project management experience in the non-profit sector and am eager to apply my translation technology expertise. Known for my problem-solving, analytical, and interpersonal skills, I excel in time management, organizational tasks, and multitasking. My proactive attitude and adaptability make me well-suited to contribute effectively in dynamic environments.
